

DP WORLD ENDS INDUSTRIAL ACTION WITH FOUR-YEAR AGREEMENT WITH MUA

DP World has successfully secured a pivotal four-year agreement with the Maritime Union of Australia, marking the conclusion of all industrial disputes. Facilitated by the Fair Work Commission, this breakthrough brings much-needed relief to the logistics and shipping sectors, promising a period of stability and enhanced operational efficiency.

Replacing the previous contract that lapsed in September 2023, the new agreement incorporates crucial provisions designed to ensure equitable compensation, heightened safety measures, efficient fatigue management, as well as assurances of job security and a balanced work-life for employees.

Nicolaj Noes, the Executive Vice President at DP World Oceania, expressed his contentment with the outcome, stating, “this agreement is a testament to our commitment to our workforce and to providing uninterrupted services to our customers. We are now focused on moving forward, restoring the supply chain operations, and working collaboratively with our employees to rebuild confidence among our customers and make a positive impact on the national economy.”

DP World extends its gratitude to the Fair Work Commission, various governmental bodies, industry groups, small and medium-sized enterprises, and customers for their support throughout the negotiation phase. This emphasises the company’s dedication to revitalising and enhancing supply chain functions across Australia.
